Early mornings and backpacks full of reading and homework are right around the corner, and now is the time to start preparing your kids and teens for back to school.

In July's Real-World Parenting Conversation, FSGC's Director of School & Community Services Jennie Watson, LCSW, will explain the importance of getting an early start when it comes to prepping kids to go back to school. She'll provide proven ideas and strategies that will make the first days of school go a lot smoother.

Have a specific question for Jennie about back-to-school?

Enter it when you sign up and Jennie will address it during the conversation.

Spots for this virtual event are limited—first-come, first-served!
