LUNCH & LEARN

Presenter: Dr. Kimberly Harrison
Professor at Washburn University

For 16 years, Dr. Harrison worked as a school social worker and educational consultant for Project STAY (Supporting Teachers and Youth), a grant partially funded through the Kansas State Department of Education that develops and strengthens educational programming for children with severe behavioral and cognitive disabilities. Prior to Washburn University, Dr. Harrison taught courses for both the Social Work and Special Education Departments at the University of Kansas. She received tenure and promotion to Associate Professor within the Department of Social Work at Washburn University in 2011. She also received promotion to Full Professor within the Department of Social Work at Washburn University in 2015

A Deep Dive into Building Cultural Sensitivity

Participants will revisit concepts within Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion that will expand awareness of bias, marginalization, and intersectionality and consider application to practice settings.

In this presentation participants will:

- Gain knowledge about ADEI concepts, such as bias, marginalization, and intersectionality
- Learn various strategies for assessment, intervention, and evaluation from a DEI lens in different practice settings.
- Engage in a brief thought-experiment (scenario) to reflect upon the content from the session.
